It was the life he had been used to as a child and young man. Perhaps we dismiss too readily our own gifts and opportunities to bring others to the faith. Perhaps our clumsiness and difference, like Andrew's place at the outer edge of the Apostolic band, makes him and us more able to relate to those who feel out on the edge?

Andrew: Apostle on the Edge - St John the Evangelist ...

Hanson, an associate professor of New Testament at St. Olaf, portrays the apostle as a stammering, frenzied man (drawing evidence from Paul's own writing) desperate to redeem his reputation. An interest in Christian theology helps, but Hanson brings a welcome passion that makes this a good piece of theater on its own.

Apostle is reminiscent of The Wicker Man at times with the need to appease a Deity to secure the harvest and also has Lovecraftian influences involving the worship of a Sea Goddess; it even made me think of the recent Cold Skin. Torture, murder and ritual execution abound and this is not a film for the squeamish.
